"If a coat of paint is applied to a man's body," said the scientific boarder, "he will die within a few hours."

"It doesn't seem plausible," rejoined the cheerful idiot, "when you take into consideration that an occasional coat of whitewash is necessary to keep some politicians from becoming dead ones."

SABBATH OBSERVANCE NOT A CHURCH ISSUE

Sabbath observance is an issue that involves a civilization. It is an issue that reaches down to the roots of things—that has to do with the foundations of free government; yes, of free government that has been evolved under the progress and enlightenment of gospel liberty born of the Reformation, nourished by the most precious patriotic blood that ever ran hot in patriot hearts or leaped living from patriotic veins to consecrate a cause and maintain the rights of man and ripening in the sweet sunlight and free air of Christianity; of broad, tolerant, Protestant Christianity.

Modern political philosophy holds that the community has a right to act as a unit. If it determines that public welfare, health, morals and social progress demand one day in seven for rest and opportunity for worship and for cultivation of the higher life, then it may determine that all industries of the community shall be so adjusted as to secure this desirable end. This end can be secured only by the enactment and enforcement of the law. The right of rest to each depends on the law of rest for all. If it is found, moreover, that the Moral Governor of the universe, the Supreme Author and source of all authority in civil government, has also decreed that man shall observe one day in seven for purposes of rest and worship, then the State has an added and binding moral obligation for such legislation, for the State is responsible to God for the proper discharge of all its moral duties. Precisely the same reasons that exist for laws in regard to murder, adultery and stealing exist for legislation on the subject of the cessation of labor one day in seven.

The Sabbath, then, as we have to do with it in our civil law, is not a religious institution at all, and the church, as such, has nothing whatever to do with it. It is a moral institution, and all our legislation, enforcement of law and penalty proceeds on that basis. The State finds its reasons for this law not in the church, but in the moral constitution of the universe; and would be bound to such enactment if there were no church in existence.

ENDORSE'S DEFENSE IS ALLEGED FRAUD

In the suit of E. G. Ferreira against A. M. Brown, endorser of a note, the defendant by his attorney, J. W. Cathcart, denies the truth of the alleged facts and files his affidavit of a good defense. He says he was induced to indorse the note by the fraud of Ferreira, explaining:

"That after the execution, delivery, receipt and acceptance of said note aforesaid, said plaintiff E. G. Ferreira brought said note to me and falsely and fraudulently stated and represented to me that he had brought said note to me by direction of said Charles F. Chillingworth and that said Charles F. Chillingworth wished and desired me to indorse the same for the benefit of him, said Chillingworth. That said statements and representations were wholly false and untrue as said E. G. Ferreira then and there well knew. That relying upon the truth of the aforesaid statements and induced thereby, I indorsed said note and not otherwise."

Complain of High Fares.

A complaint was made to High Sheriff Henry yesterday afternoon by stablemen to the effect that certain hackmen were charging exorbitant rates of fare. It was alleged that a man named Blackburn, driver of Hack 31, took a tourist from a steamer to his hotel and told him that if he ever wanted a carriage while in Honolulu that he could furnish him with one. According to the story the tourist ordered a horse and buggy for the Pall. The hackman took his horse from his hack and rented a buggy. When the man returned he found that his bill was $6. The stablemen state that the regular charge for the trip would have been $3. They met and went to the hackman and asked him about the affair and report that they were told that it was none of their business. They are indignant and intend to take action to warn tourists against unjust rates.

WORK OF SATURDAY IN BOTH HOUSES

The Senate yesterday passed the pawnbroking bill, and likewise the bill to encourage small farming by exempting land used for the beginning of agricultural enterprises from taxation, although Jared G. Smith wrote a letter in which he deprecated the principle of this county bill. The Senate also debated the banking license bill at some length.

In the House, the most significant feature of the day was the request of Superintendent of Public Works Holloway for a complete investigation of the whole insane asylum contract matter. The request came as accompaniment of the correspondence relating to the contract, which had been requested by resolution of the House. The investigation is expected to disclose a number of things.

The full proceedings of Saturday's session of both houses will be printed tomorrow.

MEMENTO OF LATE MRS. STANFORD

An interesting souvenir of the late Mrs. Stanford's kindness to young people was brought to the Advertiser office last night by Otto Gertz, the Kalih merchant. In exhibiting the memento he said:

"I extend my sympathy, on behalf of the messenger boys of the Western Union Telegraph Co. and of the American District Telegraph Co. of San Francisco, to the immediate mourners of Mrs. Stanford."

Mr. Gertz, when a boy in 1897 and 1898, belonged to each of the messenger staffs mentioned. He was the recipient, on Washington's Birthday in 1898, of a copy of the New Testament at the hands of Mrs. Stanford, on the occasion of her annual dinner to the messenger boys.

This is the souvenir he showed last night. Its red cloth cover is stamped in gilt with the inscription, "From Mrs. Leland Stanford, February 22, 1898." On a fly leaf is written in a bold hand by the donor, "Master Otto Gertz from Mrs. L. Stanford."
